Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1, 4-13, and 18 are drawn to battery monitoring, classified in class 320, subclass 134.
  - II. Claims 2, 14-15, and 19 are drawn to current flow estimation, classified in class 324, subclass 76.1.
  - III. Claims 3, 16-17, and 20 are drawn to estimating the device temperature, classified in class 257, subclass 470.
2. Inventions of group 1 and 2 are related as combination and subcombination. Inventions in this relationship are distinct if it can be shown that (1) the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed for patentability, and (2) that the subcombination has utility by itself or in other combinations (MPEP § 806.05(c)). In the instant case, the combination as claimed does not require the particulars of the subcombination as claimed because group 1 does not require these. The subcombination has separate utility such as estimating the current that is flowing through a gating device, as opposed to regulating current.
3. Inventions 1 and 3 are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, group 1 has separate utility such as being an apparatus capable of charging a battery. Group 3's method of estimating the device temperature is useful in any device that contains a PN junction. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

4. Inventions of group 2 and 3 are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. In the instant case, invention of group 2 has separate utility such as estimating the current that is flowing through a protective circuit. Group 3's method of estimating the device temperature is useful in any device or circuit where temperature affects linearity of the device, such as a measurement circuit. See MPEP § 806.05(d).

5. Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and the search required for Group 1 is not required for Group 2, the search required for Group 1 is not required for Group 3, the search required for Group 2 is not required for Group 3, therefore restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.
